WHO DO I CONTACT IF I HAVE QUESTIONS OR CONCERNS ABOUT THE CODE OF ETHICS?

Most issues regarding the Code of Ethics and how it applies to a particular situation can be resolved locally before they become problems for the Company, employees or the public. The Company encourages employees to present ideas, raise concerns or ask questions about this Code of Ethics—especially those of a legal or ethical nature. All managers are responsible for supporting and enforcing this policy by maintaining an “open door” for their direct reports and those who may reach out to them.

While we hope that employees feel comfortable comment, discussing any matter with their supervisors, there may be times when a supervisor cannot help. There are a variety of resources available to help.

You can contact any one of the following:

- The next higher level of supervisor
- The head of your department
- Director of Human Resources

While your questions and concerns can often be resolved at the local level, the Director of Human Resources provides another way to address issues that cannot be resolved there and, in general, provides a way to report a concern or get information or advice regarding the Code of Ethics. You may contact the Director of Human Resources by email at van.smith@lscsusa.com or by telephone at +1 (252) 824-3553.

WHEN SHOULD I RAISE CONCERNS OR QUESTIONS?

Ideally, you should raise concerns or questions about the Code of Ethics before actual problems arise. You should speak up if you believe that you or your co-workers risk violating laws, regulations, or Company policies, or if you find yourself uncomfortable with a situation. When in doubt, raise your concerns. All employees will be treated with dignity and respect and will not be subject to retaliation, threats or harassment for raising concerns or questions.

Remember, you are required to report any known violations of applicable law, rule, regulation or Company policy, including any violations of the Code of Ethics.

When in doubt, raise your concerns.
